

Google search spike suggests people don't know why they Brexited

Description

The country has just voted to leave the European Union. The majority of the electorate has chosen to turn its back on the biggest political project in the world, a flawed but forward-thinking union that served as the only concrete symbol of European unity after the continent was torn apart by two World Wars. But why? According to Google, a lot of voters aren't really sure.

Read Source: Google search spike suggests people don't know why they Brexited

Category

1. News

Date Created

24/06/2016